Editorial

The theme of this issue is ethnographic research on media. The contributions showcase the wide variety of approaches to media ethnography that characterise the Collaborative Research Center (CRC) 1187 “Media of Cooperation” as an interdisciplinary research endeavour. For the purposes of the research, media ethnography is broadly defined as ethnographic research on the collective and cooperative production and use of media in situ. The papers included in the thematic focus explore media as an object of ethnographic research and their role in ethnographic fieldwork.

The section reports document the interdisciplinary conference “Computing is Work!” Organised by Tom Haigh and Sebastian Gießmann, the conference was held at the CRC 1187 “Media of Cooperation” in July 2017. A think piece written by Sebastian Gießmann is combined with videos of the talks to provide a fascinating intermedia insight into the event.

The editorial team hopes that you will enjoy this issue of Media in Action!
